

Spiritual Sustainability

A Sharing Circle for Allies, Activists,
Athletes, Academics, Artists and Our Ancestors

In honour of National Truth and Reconciliation Day,
the Change Centre invites you to be with the land.

September 29, 2022 | 10-2pm | Gainford, Alberta

Welcoming knowledge keepers, Emil Durocher and Daphne Alexis.

Shelby LaFramboise

Shelby LaFramboise is a Métis iskwew originally from Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Shelby is the proud mother of adult & teenage children. She holds a master's thesis from the University of Alberta, Faculty of Education, Elementary Education in the area of language and literacy.

Her research interests have included social justice perspectives and Indigenous perspectives in Canadian curriculum and how Canadian teachers delve into these practices. As well, researching nêhiyawêwin language revitalization/reclamation practices across Turtle Island and beyond. She is an assistant professor who holds a cross-appointment within the Faculty of Fine Arts and Communications and kihêw waciston, the university's Indigenous centre. Her tenure-track appointment is the first of its kind at MacEwan University.

Register at www.campchange.ca
780-727-2848

*Transportation support is available for this event

UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA

CHANGE
HEALTH